SIR KEITH: I can't do that. I haven't the authority.

LIZ: I thought you'd convinced the Minister.

38. 2 B SIR KEITH: So I have./ But the order to MCU SIR KEITH close down must come through Stahlman
I've no direct authority to interfere.

SUTTON: That's great. The whole place is going up and you're all tied up in red tape.

SIR KEITH: (HELPLESSLY) I don't know.
I just don't know ...

SUTTON: If Stahlman's cracked up Sir Keith - then surely you're in charge. You can order the drilling to be stopped.

41. 3 B SIR KEITH: The evidence isn't conclusive. Stahlman may have his reasons for shutting himself in there ...

DOCTOR WHO and the TWO UNIT
SENTRIES come along.

DOCTOR WHO escapes by using his 'Martian Karate'. He leaves the SOLDIERS on the ground and runs off. They recover themselves and follow.

CUT

A Catwalk. Day.

As in Episode Three, this is a catwalk, high up, probably alongside a massive tank of some sort. DOCTOR WHO has climbed up on it, possibly via another ladder. He looks down cautiously to the ground below.

Ground below the Catwalk. Day.

From Doctor Who's P.O.V. The SENTRIES still searching below.

A Catwalk. Day.

DOCTOR WHO moves cautiously forward. And then he stops abruptly. Barring his way is the infected TECHNICIAN from the Main Switch Room - the one who was attacked by Slocun. The man is snarling and screeching at him. His arms are matted with thick, coarse hair. His hands are clawlike as they reach out for DOCTOR WHO.

DOCTOR WHO jerks his head round anxiously - to see if, as in Earth II, he's going to find himself trapped between two semi-Primeords. But the way is clear. (The infected soldier was killed in Episode 2) But the TECHNICIAN is advancing.

DOCTOR WHO grabs a nearby fire extinguisher, as he did before - and points the nozzle at the TECHNICIAN. DOCTOR blasts away and the TECHNICIAN collapses. DOCTOR WHO makes his escape.
